FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

Ms. Ritu Kaul
Principal

As we wind up this year, I want to take a moment to reflect on our collective achievements, the challenges we have faced, and the growth we have experienced. The final months of the year give us a chance to pause, appreciate how far we've come, and prepare ourselves for the new opportunities ahead.

Looking back, I am incredibly proud of the dedication and hard work that each of you—students, teachers, and staff—have put into making this year a success. Whether it is been excelling in academics, participating in extracurricular activities, or supporting one another, your efforts have truly been inspiring.

Now is also a time for reflection: Have we met the goals we set for ourselves? What can we learn from our experiences? Remember, true success lies not just in achieving our goals, but in growing from the challenges and the lessons along the way.

As we wrap up the year, I encourage you to take a moment to appreciate the friendships you have made, the knowledge you have gained, and the memories you have created. Don't forget to rest and recharge over the break—taking care of yourself is just as important as achieving your goals.

I look forward to all the possibilities the new year holds for us. Let's continue to foster a school environment where we support each other, embrace kindness and respect, and strive for excellence in all that we do.

Wishing you all a peaceful end to the year and a bright beginning to the next.

A Mother's Lament

He stood so tall, with fire in his chest,
"Mother, I must- it's for the best"
But what is "best" when sons must die?
What is "honour" when the cost runs high?

"Don't go, my boy," I begged, I pled,
"These battles are hollow, their leaders mislead.
They send our children, while they remain,
Feasting on power, untouched by pain."

But his eyes burned bright, his voice so strong,
"I must go, Ma, to right the wrong."
And as he turned, I whispered low,
"How can I bear to let you go?"

The nights were long; I'd sit and wait,
Haunted by dreams, a mother's weight.
I saw his first steps, his tiny frame,
His laughter, his joy- before war came.

"Be safe," I cried to the stars each night,
"Be safe, my boy, stay in the light."
Every letter, each word he wrote,
Clung to my heart like a fragile note.

But then they came, the men in gray,
With faces filled with words they couldn't say,
I knew the truth before they spoke,
The moment my soul, in silence, broke.

I crumbled, unmoored, my voice torn apart,
The war claimed my son and shattered my heart.

What legacy lives in the ruins of strife?
A world that consumes the gift of life.
For what is victory when life is the cost?
In every war, it is a mother who has lost.

Amritpal Singh (XI A)

Lost In The Night

A letter lost in the folds of the night,
Words unspoken, a love out of sight.
You were the promise, a dream once so real,
Now just an echo, a wound that won't heal.
Memories flicker like stars in the sky,
Each glimmer - a reminder when we'd fly high.
The warmth of your touch - a delicate flame,
Now leaves me darkness, whispering your name.
I am adrift through places we used to know,
Each corner a ghost, a shadow's bitter glow.
The laughter we shared like a haunting refrain,
Fades to silences, replaced by excruciating pain.
Hope was a river, now it's run dry,
I reach for the future but the past won't comply.
Love was a song, sweet and so bright,
Just like a letter lost in the folds of the night...

Saumya Saini (XI A)

TRUE HAPPINESS

What is it?
Smiles in a kit,
That is fit,
For the career its lit.

Where do they come from?
A joy from the home town,
Which is as bright as a shining crown .

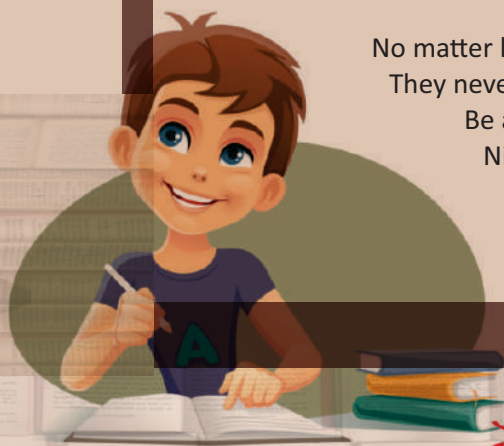

The sadness has vanished in a trice,
With the members united,
Without a price.

The tears got replaced,
with smiles on my face.

The bitterness of outside,
Was filled with kind,
Sweetness of inside.

No matter how sad I could be,
They never let my inner self
Be as cold as a
Night tree .

Embracing Endings and New Beginnings

“Every end is a new beginning, waiting for us to step forward with courage and hope.”

As the year inches toward its close, we stand at the crossroads of reflection and anticipation. This is the perfect time to pause, look back on our journey, and prepare for what lies ahead. With winter approaching, nature reminds us of its quiet wisdom. Often seen as a season of cold and gloom, winter is, in fact, a season of renewal. Beneath the frost lies the promise of spring, waiting to bloom.

This year has been a blend of moments—some filled with laughter, others with challenges that tested our resilience. We celebrated achievements that brought us closer as a community and faced hurdles that taught us strength and perseverance. As students, we learned that every experience, whether joyous or tough, shapes us into better versions of ourselves.

Winter, much like life, teaches us the importance of patience and introspection. It invites us to slow down, cherish the warmth of togetherness, and nurture dreams that will blossom in the seasons to come. Let us embrace this time to set new goals, celebrate our progress, and prepare for the brighter days that await.

As you explore this edition, we hope you are inspired by the reflections of a vibrant year and the promise of a hopeful future.

“In the depth of winter, I finally learned that within me there lay an invincible summer.”

– Albert Camus
